

Where Am I Really?

When it comes to our faith, most of us are further from where we want to be than we'd like to admit. These six questions are designed to help you work out why. Be honest. Nobody else needs to see your answers.

- If someone who knows you well were asked how your faith has changed in the last year, what would they say?
- What is the one area of your life where you know God has been nudging you, but you haven't moved?
- When did you last do something in your faith that genuinely cost you something: time, comfort, money, or reputation?
- If a new believer followed your example for the next six months, where would they end up?
- What one step, if you were courageous enough to take it, would make the biggest difference to your journey with Jesus?

Just Starting Out?

Faith begins with questions, not answers. Start here.

- What is one question about faith or about Jesus that you'd love to find an answer to?
- How might you find the answer?
- What or who could help you discover it?
- Has anything else come to mind as you've been answering the questions above?
